Hamburg, April 26. On Saturday last, at eleven o'clock in the morning, a most terrible storm arose, the like of which never happened in the remembrance of the oldest person living. This storm continuing with the utmost violence till yesterday morning, did considerable damage of every kind; it threw down several buildings and magazines in the city, destroyed the boats on the river Alster, &c. The towers of the churches were so shaken as to put the bells in motion. Near Cuxhaven the ships of W. Hinricks, J. Eufen, and St. Janfon, bound for Greenland, were sunk to the bottom. The crew of the first were saved; that of the second perished with the ship; and we are assured that 13 men belonging to the third were also swallowed up in the waves. The lighthouse of Rizebuttel was also thrown down. The damages done at sea must be still more shocking.

Elected instead of Members who voted for Mr Pitt.

At the close of the poll this day for Westminster, the numbers were,

For Lord Hood	6663
Mr Fox	6165
Sir Cecil Wray	5971

After the close of the poll yesterday for Westminster, an affray happened at Covent-Garden. It seems, there had been summoned an extraordinary number of Constables, to keep the peace. At three o'clock all was quiet; but in half an hour afterwards, when the business of the day was finished, a violent conflict took place between the Constables and the mob; the former of which were driven out of the Garden down King Street. At four o'clock, Justice Wilmot brought up a detachment ment of the Guards, who, after twice or thrice parading from Wood's Hotel to the corner of Henrietta-street, (headed by a few Constables) seized on the butchers who attend with marrow bones and cleavers, &c. and conducted them to Hood and Wray's Committee-room. Several of the Peace Officers, and many of the populace, were much bruised and wounded. The Guards were attending late last night.

Covent-Garden, King Street, James Street, and all the neighbourhood, yesterday, from three in the afternoon to nine at night, exhibited a scene of riot, shocking to describe, totally in defiance of all law and the police of a great city. The inhabitants, since the commencement of the poll, have been deprived of pursuing their occupations, being daily obliged to shut up their shops, on account of the desperate gangs of sailors, chairmen, &c. who are constantly committing outrages in that quarter.

Last night at half past ten, fifteen of the Covent-Garden rioters were brought to Newgate, under a strong detachment of the Guards.

We hear 1500 l. bail was offered for one of the above persons, but refused by the Magistrates.

A gentleman, unconnected with any party, who was at Wood's Hotel yesterday, declares, that the occurrence was so far uncommon, that the civil officers were the first who broke the peace, and the military ready to preserve it.

This morning an express arrived at the East India House, with a packet of letters saved out of the Crocodile frigate, which was lost on Sunday morning last off the Start. The Crocodile sailed with dispatches from Bombay on the 14th of January, and brings an account of an engagement between Sir Edward Hughes and the French, occasioned by some insults from the French, on the 20th of December last, when, after a severe combat, which lasted several hours, Sir Edward Hughes took possession of Cannemore, with a number of prisoners, and a large quantity of treasure. The loss on the side of the French is said to be very great; but on the English side few. The Crocodile's crew are saved.

The following East Indians were left well at St. Helena the 20th of March, viz. the Rodney, Wakeman; Royal Henry, Dundas; Worcester, Cook; and Darton, West; all homeward bound.

The Northumberland, Rees; Raymond; Hall; Winterton, Snow; and General Elliott, Drummond, were left well at the Cape.

The troops now under orders for the East Indies are in consequence of an agreement with the India Company, and will sail in the next fleet for Madras.

Prince Heraclius is making some extraordinary motions in Georgia, the consequences of which are apprehended at Constantinople. The Porte has given the strictest orders to fortify without delay the towns of Kers and Akatike in Armenia. The Divan have moreover ordered the Bakhaw of Erzerum to march all his troops to Kers, to be ready in case of any unforeseen emergency.

The new treaty now negotiating between the Empress of Russia and our Court respects the trade of Persia, which it is proposed to bring over land to Europe.

It is said, that the Parliament will have so much business to go through that it cannot be completed before the latter end of August.

Whilst the deluded people of this country are wrangling for who is to be the representative of this or that rotten borough, whether a Pittite or a Foxite, our common enemies are meditating a dreadful blow, and have actually sent a most considerable force to the India. The Grave of D— made repeated applications and inquiries into the reason, but could obtain no satisfactory answer; nay, was trifled with; till at last he took French leave, and returned to settle some private affairs of his own (as ministerial prints assert). However, we can assure our readers, that in consequence thereof, twelve sail of the line are ordered to be got ready instantly, and the following regiments have already received orders to embark, viz. the 34th, 36th, 38th, 50th, and 62d regiments; and the 1st battalion of Royals, besides four other regiments, whose names we could not learn, received orders to hold themselves in readiness. The command of this fleet will be given to Lord Hood, and the command of the troops was offered to Lord Cornwallis, who refused it; whereupon the command was given to General Dalling.

The lovers of the fine arts will be pleased to hear, that there is soon to be an exhibition of new paintings, to be held in the Great Room in St. Stephen's Chapel. The access to these paintings, which are the works of the most eminent masters, will be easy. The following is some of the principal performances; they are not all paintings, the Society having condescended to accept of engravings, busts, wax figures, and curious heads of wood.

1. The Infant Hercules—designed by Lord Chatham, and painted by Mr William Pitt. There is much life in this picture; but the hands are not properly disposed, and appear rather too weak to achieve the bold feat.

2. The Plunder of India—designed by Mr Fox. This piece is unfinished, and, therefore, it were ungenerous to say much concerning it.

3. The Conquest of America—by Lord North. This is a fancy piece. The colouring is faint, and, from the want of vigour in the touches of this artist's pencil, one is led to imagine that he dozed over his work.

4. The Tower of Babel—this is the work of two or three different artists, whose names are concealed, they being ashamed of their work.

5. The General Reformation—designed by Mr Sawbridge. There is something that strikes in the design of this piece, but the execution is abominable.

6. A group of Scotchmen electing their own Magistrates, designed by Mr Dempster. This is merely an etching.

7. The Scourging of Nabobs—by Mr Dundas. There is a great want of vigour in the execution of this piece. Such scourging is more like sea-bites; but, from a little inconsistency in the plan, we are led to imagine, the person who bought the picture interrupted the work.

8. A Bull and Bear Scene—by the Chancellor of the Exchequer. The drapery is finished with correctness. The bulls are sufficiently natural. The waddling of the geese in the background is a circumstance probable at least.

9. A Philosopher teaching Sublimity by illustrations from meanness—by Mr Burke. This is a copy. The original was exhibited at this place last year.

10. The Insolvent Bill, with the debtors climbing over the heads of their creditors to escape—by a noble Lord. This is intended as a companion to the departure of the beasts from Noah's ark after the flood. We have seen a design of the same sort by this artist before, but there is still room for improvement.

11. Patience on a Monument—by Mr Pitt. This is tolerably finished. A painting of this kind is very much wanted, to terminate the Treasury vista.

12. The Man and the Afs, from AEsop's Fables—by the Speaker of the House of Commons. This is a good picture. The situation is, where the man and his son, having disguised the people by riding together on the afs, agree to dismount, and carry the afs. The afs appears to be taken from the life.

13. Religion animating Abilities—by the Bishop of Landaff. The pencil is handled with manly vigour in this painting.

WIND AT DEAL, MAY 10. S. S. E.

Extract of a letter from London, May 11.

"You have been informed, no doubt, by the newspapers, of the riot that happened yesterday in Covent-Garden. The audacity of the rabble here is truly astonishing. It is now, indeed. When Dukes, Duchesses, and Ministers of State condescend to court them, they have a right to be insolent; and blows and abusive language is the only method that the officers have of shewing their importance. One of the peace officers, yesterday wounded, died this day of his wounds. These are sad things; but they are among the few evils attending our excellent form of Government.

"Charles Fox (who, by the bye, has laid aside his buff waistcoat, and, in honour of the return of warm summer weather, put on a white one,) this day harangued his friends from the hustings, assuring them, not only that they (not he) would finally triumph over all their enemies in Westminster, but that all abettors of secret and unconstitutional influence would be overthrown in Parliament. It is generally thought, indeed, that there will be, in this new Parliament, a very formidable opposition to Government.

"Mr Fox's friends, since he returned the scale against Sir Cecil Wray, have been distinguished by sprigs of laurel in their hats. The opposite party, however, have fallen on an happier device: They wear oaken leaves, alluding to the oaken walls of Great Britain. "Hearts of oak are our ships," &c. is the tune that is generally played by their band of music. Every day, at the close of the poll, Lord Hood and Sir Cecil Wray come forward together on the hustings, shake hands in token of concord and union of interests, and make a profound bow to the multitude. These trifling particulars, that are so common as to pass unobserved here, serve to give some idea of the busy scenes that are passing in England to a Scotchman. We begin to look to the meeting of Parliament, when objects of greater importance will enable your correspondents to afford you, occasionally, higher entertainment.

"Lord Hood, it is said, has squandered away, in this election business, his little fortune, and is to be appointed to the naval department in India, in order to repair it. The rumours of a war in India, however, do not gain ground. The ship off Portsmouth, that has been for some time under failing orders, to carry the Definitive Treaty with the Dutch to India, is not recalled, but has orders to be still in readiness, and expects daily to sail. The French and Dutch, as well as the English, have certainly need of a few years rest."

Thursday last, James Hunter-Blair, Esq; representative for this city, set off for London, to attend his duty in Parliament. Several other Scots members have taken their leave of Scotland, for the same purpose, since our last.

On the 4th current, Dr Robert Grant, Physician in Inverness, was unanimously admitted a Member of the Royal College of Physicians of this place.

On Monday the 10th current, died here, much and most justly lamented, Mrs Macleod of Cadboll.

Extract of a letter from Inverary, May 8.

"The Circuit Court of Justiciary was opened here on Thursday last, the 6th current, by the Right Honourable the Lord Hailes, when the following business came before the Court:

"Mary Kilpatrick, daughter of Henry Kilpatrick, tenant in Calliburn, in the county of Argyll, was accused of child-murder.

"Robert Hamilton senior, tenant in Corry, in the parish of Kilbride and shire of Bute, was indicted for the murder of William Stewart constable, in the exercise of his office, as he was executing a pouncing of Hamilton's effects. Hamilton, with a muck grape, struck and wounded the said William Stewart on different places on the back of the head, of which wounds he soon afterwards died.

"The said Mary Kilpatrick and Robert Hamilton failing to compare, sentence of fugitation was pronounced against them.

"There being no other business before the Court, they will proceed to Glasgow on Monday next."

Extract of a letter from Jedburgh, May 10.

"The Circuit Court of Justiciary was opened at this place yesterday, by the Right Honourable the Lord Henderland. There was no business to come before the Court, which is adjourned till to-morrow, the last day of the ayre. This ends the southern Circuit."

SALE of the ESTATE of ORCHARDTON,

In the STEWARTRY of KIRKCUDBRIGHT.—In Whole or in Lots.
TO be SOLD by public roup, within the Exchange Coffeehouse in Edinburgh, upon Friday the 23d of July 1784, the roup to begin at five o'clock afternoon.

All and Whole the Lands and Estate of ORCHARDTON, lying within the parishes of Bute, Rervick, and united parishes of Gelfton and Kelton, and stewartry of Kirkcudbright.

This estate consists of 3267 acres Scots measure, whereof there are 1600 acres of rich arable ground, and 1577 acres of excellent pasture.—Almost the whole estate is inclosed, and the arable farms are subdivided with good fences. The farm houses, which are timbered with the best foreign wood, and covered with slates, and office-houses, are in the very best order, most of them having been built within these three or four years. The free rent of the estate is 1014l. Sterl. after deduction of all public burdens; and by subdividing the larger farms, a considerable rise of rent might be obtained. The tenants are in general men of wealth, and are carrying on great improvements by means of lime, marle, sea-shells, &c. with which the lands are plentifully supplied.

The natural wood on this estate is extensive, and the whole of an age fit for cutting; from a late appreciation it appears, that the value of the wood is upwards of 500l. Sterling.

Upon the lands of New Orchardton there has been lately built a large, elegant, and commodious mansion-house, with a complete set of office-houses, and houses for labouring servants, executed in the most substantial manner. In erecting and completing which buildings, there has been expended upwards of 3000l. Sterling. There is also a good garden and orchard well stocked with fruit trees.

The House of Orchardton is delightfully situated near the Bay of Hiffon on the Solway Frith, and has a commanding prospect of the coast of England on the opposite shore. Within the bounds of the estate are several good harbours, fit to receive vessels of considerable burden; particularly one within 300 yards of the house of Orchardton; from the Bay near the house, the family residing there may at all seasons be plentifully supplied with a variety of fish, which are taken by the servants, without difficulty, by placing nets at low water.—Among the many advantages which this estate enjoys, it may be remarked, that it lies in a country where the spring and summer are earlier than in any other place in Scotland, and the cold and other disagreeable effects of the east wind are scarcely felt.

The whole estate holds of the Crown for payment of small feu and blanch duties, and stands valued in the cess-books at 1047l. Scots, which, with two forty shilling lands of old extent, entitles the proprietor to four freehold qualifications.

If the estate is not sold in whole, it will be exposed in lots as follows, LOT I.—Mains of Orchardton, Chapelcroft, Blackbelly, &c. New Mill of Orchardton and Glenhinnoch, and Mill of Auchincarr.

NOTE. This lot includes the mansion-house, and all the natural wood. LOT II.—The Farm of Clonyards, lying detached from the rest of the estate.

LOT III.—The Farm of Caigton.

For further particulars enquire at the proprietor at Orchardton house, William Keith accountant in Edinburgh, or at James Baillie at the Stamp Office, who will show the tacks, rental, progress of writs, and a plan and measurement of the estate. Any person inclining to treat by private bargain before the day of sale may apply as above.

SALE OF LANDS in FIFE.

TO be sold by public roup and sale, within John's Coffee-house of Edinburgh, upon Wednesday the 28th of July next, between the hours of five and six afternoon.

Sterling, free of all deductions, but including the rent of a limekiln, which has been let for these three years at 21l. Sterling.

The whole lands are capable of great improvement, as there is lime and coal upon them.—The coal has been wrought for more than three years past, and during that time has yielded a considerable profit, and it still has a very favourable appearance, so that it is believed it will turn out a very great advantage to the estate.—The lands lie between three and four miles from St Andrews and Cupar.

The whole estate holds of the Crown as coming in place of the Bishop of St Andrews, and are rated in the cess-books of the county at 417l. 6s. 8d. Scots.

The title deeds, conditions of sale, rental, and plan of the estate, are to be seen in the hands of Francis and John Anderson writers to the signet, to whom, or to Mr John Hay accountant in Edinburgh, any person wanting to be informed of further particulars may apply.—Copies of the rental, and conditions of sale, are also to be seen in the hands of John Stevenson writer in Cupar.
